

Spring meeting overview

10 - 12 April 2019

Royal Welsh College of Music and Drama, Cardiff

The BGS Spring meeting will cover the latest scientific research and the best clinical practice in care of older people. Our ageing population is stimulating extensive NHS service redesign to deal with the challenge of caring for larger numbers of older people both in and out of hospitals. This conference will cover core areas of interest to all specialists responsible for the health care of older people in the United Kingdom and internationally.

The Stoke session on Friday 12 April 2019 is endorsed by the British Association of Stroke Physicians

This programme has been submitted for CPD credits to the Royal College of Physicians.

GUEST LECTURERS

Prof Scott Brakenridge
Assistant professor of surgery
Acute care surgery team at UF Health

Scott Brakenridge, MD, MSCS, FACS, is an Assistant Professor of Surgery & Anesthesiology at the University of Florida (Gainesville, FL, USA). Dr Brakenridge's clinical interests include trauma surgery, acute care surgery and surgical critical care. This includes the comprehensive surgical care of severely injured trauma patients and patients with surgical sepsis, including their initial evaluation in the emergency department, the operative management of acute surgical issues and their subsequent supportive care in the intensive care unit. Dr Brakenridge is a primary investigator and core leader of the UF Sepsis and Critical Illness Research Center. His research focuses on clinical, translational and outcomes approaches to investigate chronic critical illness (CCI), and the persistent inflammation, immunosuppression and catabolism syndrome (PICS) after surgical sepsis or severe traumatic injury, which represent a rapidly growing phenotype of long-term morbidity and mortality among early survivors of critical illness, especially the "aged reproduction" and "healthy ageing". He remains actively involved in several large international research projects, with a particular interest in the influence of the physical, social and economic environments on health.

Mr John Appleby
Director of research and chief economist, visiting professor
Institute of Cardiovascular and Medical Science, University of Glasgow

John Appleby joined the Nuffield Trust as Director of Research and Chief Economist in September 2016, after 18 years at The King's Fund. He is a Visiting Professor at the City Health Economics Centre, City University London and Visiting Professor at the Institute of Global Health Innovation at Imperial College. John has previously worked in the NHS in Birmingham and London, and as senior lecturer at the universities of Birmingham and East Anglia. For five years he worked for the National Association of Health Authorities (now the NHS Confederation) as manager of the Association's Central Policy Unit. John has acted as an advisor to the UK government and Parliament in various capacities, for example, carrying out a review for Ministers of the future funding needs of Northern Ireland's health service, and as a task force member for the Marmot Commission on health inequalities; a special adviser to the House of Commons Health Select Committee, member of the National Quality Board's Priorities sub-committee and as a member of the Department of Health's Stakeholder Reference Group on patient reported outcome measures.
